Description:

In 1967 Carroll Shelby did what many had deemed impossible: he offered a fine American GT car at, while not a cheap price, a price within reason. He called it the G.T.500 and starting with Ford's Mustang, he transformed it into a genuine, fun-loving corner carver, and all for around $5,500. It caused a stir on streets everywhere. A Santa Cruz Sentinel review from July of 1967 found that never had they tested a vehicle that got as much attention as the Shelby G.T.500. They wrote "Kids swarmed over it when it was parked. Teenagers and grown men constantly quizzed us about the car's performance. And best of all, the ladies suddenly found the driver attractive." Those spotlight-stealing qualities have remained with...
