Description:

How are clipping paths used for electronic commerce? In product photography, the most common use of a clipping path is to remove the background of a product image. The clipping path surrounds the product, which can then be placed on another background or saved as a transparent image. Cropping product images is also known as "engraving," "clippings," or creating a "silo" (short for "silhouette"). Seamless background of the product image of the watch removed by the US clipping path company. After a product is cut from its bottom by a clipping path service, it can be placed in a new background or saved as a transparent bottomless product image. +1 240 918 9262 info@clippingusa.com <https://www.clippingusa.com>
