Description:

Using technology to get things done faster is the first phase of customer service. When things go wrong, the human hospitality and empathy would help to pacify your customers while your technology tries to rectify the problem as soon as possible. It is always a combination of technology and humane effect. Doing bare minimum to get your customers to leave your premise with satisfaction is not enough anymore. You need to do a tad more than your competitors to get San Diego referrals for your company. The basis of good customer service is speed, accuracy, and hospitality.
