Description:

The COVID-19 pandemic and associated restrictions on travel and mass assembly have, and will continue to have, a significant affect on contractual obligations. Under both impossibility or performance and frustration of purpose, the operative factor to consider is whether the intervening event was foreseeable at the time the contract was signed. If you anticipate litigation related to business dealings or are faced with contracting parties who are refusing to pay on their contracts, please contact us for a free consultation at 848.202.9323
