Description:

Printing has been in existence since human civilization has recorded it. And it can be said that the development of civilization is inseparable from the support of the printing industry. Through the mass recording and dissemination function of the printing industry, human civilization can flourish. In our daily life, printed matter can be seen everywhere. Such as various packaging products, books, notebooks, textbooks, etc. Printing has developed to today, and the technical level has been very mature, but in the face of increasingly severe climate and environmental pressures, new requirements have been placed on the printing industry. As we all know, the printing industry is an industry with high energy consump...
