Description:

Just as the name implies, dental bridges span the gap that occurs when you lose a tooth or multiple teeth in the same area of your mouth. The bridge consists of artificial replacement teeth to fill in the open space between your permanent teeth. A bridge usually attaches to teeth that surround the gap on one or both sides, but it can attach to your natural teeth or to teeth that have been fortified with a crown. Typically, your family dentists need to place crowns on the supporting teeth to strengthen the anchors of your bridge. If crowns arent sufficient, he can use dental implants, which support the crown with embedded metal posts.

Each situation of missing teeth needs to evaluated and treated individually by...
