Description:

Ionic Framework is an open source for Hybrid Mobile App Development. Hybrid applications are essentially small websites running in a browser in an app that have access to the native platform layer. We build Ionic because we strongly believed that HTML5 would rule on mobile over time, exactly as on the desktop. Ionic Framework provides all the capabilities of Native application and saves from writing the code for each operating system, thereby reduces the development time and saves the maintenance costs. SmartServe has also experience in developing mobile applications with offline capabilities with the combination of PouchDB and CouchDB.
