Description:

When it comes to gun violence across the United States are country seems just as divided as its ever been with most of the left hoping to get rid of any and every gun on the street and the right, for the most part, believing that every American has the right have a firearm, in an effort to protect their family and prevent them from whatever harm might ever come their way. However, while there is still major division between parties and people in general, the last few years of violence and specifically teen and young adult gun violence has truly turned much of the world on its head causing many supporters to shrug their shoulders, and some individuals, such as an anonymous veteran in Southern Florida voiced his ...
